Uses of "have you had" and "did you have" - Stack Exchange I would say the key difference between "Have you (done X)" and "Did you (do X)" is the timeframe. I believe have refers to a continuous past and asks if something has happened since a particular time. While did specifies a particular time and asks if it happened then. When you don't specify the time, have defaults to either ever or recently. Since almost everyone has had lunch at least once in their life, we assume the more useful question of whether they've had it today. did you know? - Improving your knowledge daily with ...
